

Scott holds a JD from the University of Oklahoma and a BA from the University of Colorado. Scott also attended Oxford University, Queen's College in Oxford, England, where he studied American and International Law.

When clients talk about Scott Kannady, they use words like "on point", "always calls first" and "results-oriented." Scott delivers more than legal services to his clients. He brings a business- focused attitude that allows him to protect his client's interest and get the deal done.

As general counsel for a mid-sized technology firm before joining Brown & Kannady, Scott knows how to help his clients protect, value, leverage and license their assets in a rapidly changing business climate.

Scott works closely with his clients to make sure they not only understand what actions are being taken on their behalf, but why they are being done and how they relate to the client's overall business and risk mitigation goals.
